*"36 years inside.
Now on your side."*

THE DIFFERENTIATOR

The broker who used to be on the other side of the desk.

Tracy MacIntyre has an asset no other mortgage broker in Atlantic Canada can claim: 36 years inside one of Canada's Big Five banks. She didn't just work at TD. She understood how the institution evaluated borrowers, priced risk, and made decisions that never got communicated to the customer sitting across the desk.

She crossed over. She is now explicitly on the client's side. That story is the foundation of everything.

THE LINE

"I spent 36 years inside the system. Now I use everything I learned to work against it. For you."

This is not a credential to mention once in a bio. It is the recurring anchor of her content identity. Every post Tracy writes has access to an insight rooted in 36 years inside the system.

Within the Sara² Team

Tracy and Alex Spicer are both Sara² team members. Their content complements rather than duplicates. Alex owns national scope, multi-province licensing, and the cross-market lens. Tracy owns banking insider knowledge, institutional experience, and the "I was inside the system" credibility. Same team. Different expertise.

CONTENT ARCHITECTURE

Four pillars. One institutional layer.

Every Tracy MacIntyre post must pass one test before it goes up:

THE FILTER

Does this require 36 years of banking experience to write? If any broker could post it, the institutional layer goes on, or it doesn't go up.

This is not mortgage education. It's banking intelligence delivered by someone who switched sides.

PILLAR	MIX	RATIONALE
Banking Insider Perspective	40%	The primary differentiator. Content rooted in 36 years inside a major bank. Every post draws on institutional experience that lives behind the bank's closed doors.
Authority Education	25%	Standard mortgage expertise layered with banking context. The mortgage 101 a banker would deliver if banks let them talk.
Market & BoC Intelligence	20%	Framed through institutional experience, not market observation. "When I was at TD, rate announcements like this triggered specific internal processes." Experience, not speculation.
Social Proof Career Story	15%	The pivot story referenced, never overplayed. Case wins, anonymized files, credibility anchors. The 36 years surfaces in context, not as a tagline.

THE ANCHOR SERIES

From the Other Side.

Monthly long-form post on LinkedIn (adapted for Facebook). Draws directly on Tracy's banking career to give clients information they would never get from a bank. Authoritative, first-person, specific.

These posts should feel like someone is telling you something they weren't supposed to tell you. Because in a sense, they are.

Sample Topics

— "What your bank's underwriting team actually looks at when they see your file. And it's not just your credit score."

— "I sat in countless internal meetings about renewal strategy. Here's why the rate your bank offers at renewal is not their best rate."

— "Banks train their staff on objection handling. Here's what they're trained to say when you push back on a rate. And what to say next."

— "The difference between how a bank prices risk versus how a broker prices it. I've been on both sides."

— "What happens inside a bank when your mortgage application is flagged. I used to be the one reviewing those flags."

BoC Reaction Protocol

Tracy's BoC posts carry an institutional layer. The kind of context only someone who worked inside a major bank can offer. "When I was at TD, rate announcements like this one triggered specific internal processes. Here's how banks translate BoC decisions into product pricing." Experience, not speculation.

THE THREE SURFACES

Three platforms. Each with a job.

LinkedIn is the professional credibility engine. Facebook reaches the Atlantic Canada audience at scale. Instagram carries the visual identity. Each platform plays a specific role. The content adapts. The voice does not.

PLATFORM	VOLUME	ROLE
LinkedIn	6 / month	Professional credibility engine. Referral partners (Realtors, financial planners, accountants, lawyers) learn to trust Tracy with their complex files. 36 years at a major bank is a credential that translates directly into professional respect.
Facebook	6 / month	Atlantic audience reach. BoC reactions, case stories, banking insider posts adapted for a general audience. Atlantic Canada community context.
Instagram	5 / month	Visual authority. Graphic-forward takes on banking-versus-broker differences. Short-form insider insights. Atlantic identity content. Template 2 only. No Tracy in scene.

LinkedIn Content Mix

- "From the Other Side" monthly series
- Referral-partner-facing commentary on lending conditions
- Insights on what makes a file fundable versus stalled, from a banker's perspective
- 1x / month: direct referral partner call-to-action. "If you have a client who was declined by their bank, this is the conversation I was built for."

Total Monthly Rhythm

Three platforms, every month. LinkedIn, Facebook, and Instagram. No Google. Plus twice-monthly email and BoC bonus emails within 48 hours of major announcements.

ATLANTIC ANCHOR

Atlantic primary. National when called.

NS and NB are the primary markets. Content should reference Atlantic-specific conditions: the way major banks treat Atlantic Canada files differently from urban Ontario markets, the specific dynamics of smaller-city lending, and what it means to have a broker who actually understands the regional difference.

The ON reach is secondary. Used for cross-provincial files and clients relocating, similar to Alex Spicer's footprint within the Sara² team.

Sara² Coordination

Two to three Sara² team posts per month that reinforce the depth of the team without both brokers posting identical content.

— Alex: National scope. Multi-province licensing. The cross-market lens.

— Tracy: Banking insider knowledge. Institutional experience. The "I was inside the system" credibility.

Career Pivot: Reference, Don't Over-Mine

The 36-year banking career surfaces approximately 1x / month in a way that feels organic. Never a fixed tagline. It should surface in context. When discussing renewal tactics, underwriting decisions, or anything where "I know how banks think about this because I worked inside one" is genuinely the most relevant thing Tracy can say.

*Overuse turns a powerful credential into background noise.
Use it as a reveal, not a headline.*

THE STANDARD

Locked rules for 2026.

- 01 Every post carries the institutional layer. Generic mortgage content does not exist in Tracy's feed.
- 02 The 36-year credential surfaces ~1x / month organically. Never forced. Never a tagline.
- 03 Atlantic Canada is the geography. NS and NB primary, ON secondary for cross-provincial files.
- 04 Sara² coordination. 2-3 team posts per month. Tracy = institutional insider. Alex = national scope. Never duplicate.
- 05 Referral partners on LinkedIn. 1x / month minimum direct referral partner CTA.
- 06 BoC reactions carry institutional context. Not market observation. "Here's how banks translate this decision internally."
- 07 The TD experience is expertise, not shame. Never frame it as "I used to be one of the bad guys."
- 08 Template 2 ONLY. No Tracy in scene. Editorial scenes only.
- 09 Canadian English throughout. Colour, neighbour, cheque.
- 10 Always #TracyMacintyreMortgages + #ChoosePremiere. Never #PremiereMortgage.
- 11 No Google posts. LinkedIn, Facebook, Instagram only.

What NOT to Post

- Generic mortgage education content any broker could write
- Anything framing the TD experience as a liability
- Rate comparison content without the institutional context layer
- Motivational quotes or feel-good content. Tracy's brand is credibility, not warmth.

36 years inside. Now on your side.

Atlantic Canada's banking insider. The broker who knows how the other side thinks. Institutional intelligence. Editorial calm. The trust that comes from having sat at both desks.
